Seeds

This week I found myself looking at some seeds I had saved from a Spaghetti Squash that I was recently given. As I looked at the seed, I was reminded of how amazing a seed actually is. These seeds didn't look like too much at all in their original form but they have the potential once planted to grow into a plant that produces quite an impressive vegetable.

This made me reflect on the fact that our thoughts are not simply just thoughts that go nowhere or do nothing. They too are seeds that we plant in our own life that will grow into something. Our thoughts impact every feeling we feel and every action we make.

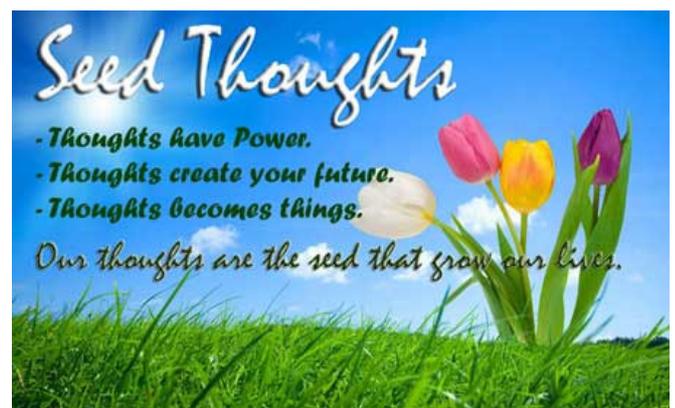

When we chose to plant healthy seeds into our minds, we reap the reward of living a good life. Likewise, if we chose to plant unhealthy thoughts into our minds, we will reap an unhealthy harvest. As Christians we can find many helpful lessons in the bible about how to live a happy and fulfilled life. God sent the Holy Spirit to help us navigate through life. Galatians 5:22-23 reads, But when the Holy Spirit controls our lives, he will produce this kind of fruit in us; love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control.

Life will often throw us some fascinating events but we can control how we react to them by constantly planting seeds of the Fruit of the Spirit into our mind. Our reactions shape our reality and our reactions will always be better if we have planted those seeds of the Fruits of the Spirit into our minds.

SOME WONDERFUL LEARNING TO SHARE

Student Parliament has been in place at Vineyard since 2016. In any Parliament session, the speaker leads discussions on topics which come from our students and staff, and decisions are made based on whether the Parliamentary Ministers and Members think it's a good idea for the group of people they represent. An example of a recent Student Parliament issue is when the Minister for Recreation (Isaiah) suggested a Chess Tournament. Much debate was held about whether there were enough students who knew how to play chess to run a tournament, and whether there was any interest for that sort of event. The two Members for Year 4/5 and 6/7s thought it was a good idea but across the floor there was very little support based on a perceived lack of knowledge in the community. A vote was held and the proposal was denied, however it was later suggested in General Business that the Minister for Recreation might do some research before the next Parliamentary sitting and use that data to re-present his argument in a fortnight's time if the interest was there. The following Parliamentary sitting heard that 43 chess games had been played during the last fortnight and more than 20 students and staff knew how to play chess and were eligible to play in a tournament. The Minister for Recreation eloquently re-presented his proposal with his evidence of student interest and knowledge and the vote was carried unanimously. HOW GREAT IS THAT!

Yesterday I was on yard duty and was absolutely delighted to watch real-life learning play out in the sandpit. Some Year 4/5s and 6/7s had constructed a town – with three linked environments: river, rainforest and endangered animals reserve. When water rained (was poured) into the first river habitat, it then ran to the rainforest area, lastly, towards the animal reserve. There were obvious signs of differences in each of the circles and the second one took my eye with dry sticks pointing up like a forest and a large dam bank where the water would run to prevent it seeping into the last habitat.

I was listening to the child in the bottom habitat present his argument for why the bank should be altered to allow the water into his area. It wasn't the conversation I expected to hear. Instead of arguing "It's not fair," he was trying to convince the others that the endangered animals living in his habitat deserved their share of the water that was provided to the others. In return, others were arguing why it should be banked up and used in the upper habitats... why the rivers and rainforest deserved to have the majority of the water and the animals only getting what was left once it had filled their areas and run over the dam bank.

"Let's take it to Parliament for a decision", one suggested... and on the side of the sandpit, Parliament was assembled. All of those involved in the argument took on roles. The one who suggested it be taken to Parliament became Speaker of the House and directed the discussion. "Minister for 'Rainforest', do you have anything to report?", he asked. "Yes, Mr Speaker", the Minister responded. "I believe that the dam bank should remain intact because if we allow the bank and fence to be opened, the endangered animals protected below will be subject to hunters and foxes and will not survive. There's no point to having all of the environments if the animals die". Again, not what I was expecting to hear.

Now at this critical time, I was called away to attend to a traffic incident with Matchbox cars in the undercover area... but when the bell rang, I went quickly back to the sandpit where the boys were now standing discussing the result of the Parliamentary sitting.

"Well Mrs Keller", said the Speaker, "we all voted, and the bank is staying as is".

"What do you think about that?", I asked the owner of the bottom ring (the endangered animals' guardian). I'm not that happy with the decision because now I have to carry my own water, but I guess they are just trying to protect our animals".

"You could always get some evidence of whether foxes really do eat endangered animals and present it again tomorrow, like Isaiah did with the chess tournament", suggested one of the others... and off they went happily together.

WOW!! I couldn't wait to share it with other staff. Here, at a micro level in the sandpit, I had witnessed the Murray Darling debate about equal water sharing between the states, go through Parliament in a civilised and respectful manner, with highly intelligent arguments constructed about the merits and dangers of changing the status quo and regarding equity.

Here I had witnessed our students choosing of their own accord to hold Parliament as their decision making process in a situation when there were differences in stakeholder opinions... and what's more – everyone respectfully accepted the process and the decision even though it wasn't in all of their best interests.

Here I had witnessed them applying their knowledge of different environments, how ecosystems link together (Upper Primary Inquiry units), of endangered animals and protection strategies (Year 2/3 inquiry units), and water management systems (their inquiry unit last year) in a meaningful real-life context.

Here I had witnessed the importance of play – not just for Junior Primary students, but in our Upper Primary students at a much more complex student-initiated level.

Lastly – here I had witnessed true collaboration by a group of kids who were trying to make a difference in two real world issues.

Wow!

This is what real learning and education is all about – co-creating, designing, prototyping, critical thinking, application of knowledge, working together, problem solving, producing a well-constructed argument, listening to others, educated decision making... and so much more.

Yesterday I learnt so much from a group of boys seemingly just playing with water and dirt together in the sandpit. Real -life learning for them - and truly inspirational for me 😊

STUDENTS OUT AND ABOUT

This week our Year 2/3 class joined with students from St John's Eudunda to spend two nights at the Monarto Zoo. They have been behind the scenes getting up close with the animals and learning more about habitats, behaviour, the animals themselves and the role of a zoo-keeper. Ashleigh will provide a more detailed report next week, but it has been great to see the across site collaboration and relationships developing between our staff and students with one of our sister Lutheran Schools. This relationship has been developing over the last three years in our ACE partnership (Angaston, Clare and Eudunda) and in this instance we have been able to build student friendships, access additional staff support, and keep costs low by working together.

At the end of the year our Year 6/7s will join with students from Good Shepherd Angaston to go to Canberra together, as we have for the last two trips. The friendships formed across sites in previous camps together have lasted well beyond the camp with some students still getting together in holidays and cross site parent friendships also developing.

Last Wednesday Mr Jervies led our SAPSASA Athletics team to Riverton, after many hours of training with both Mr Jervies and Mrs Dare in lunchtimes and lessons. Mr Jervies will provide a report of the day, but he shared with staff, (the following morning), stories of students encouraging others and going the extra mile to support each other.

Thanks to our staff for their preparation work and the many parent helpers who offer to accompany us on these extra-curricular activities. We rely on parent support for these events to happen and for transport to keep costs low. Your support is valued and appreciated.

WATER MAKES A DIFFERENCE

Thanks to Mr Jervies, Mr Goodwin, Mr Brugioni and Mr Roger Sanders for watering, mowing and tending to our oval over the last few weeks – turning a drying brown grassy patch into a lush green oval again. Thanks also to Mr Brugioni and Mr Goodwin for fixing our mud kitchen tap and providing a safe and efficient water solution for our mud kitchen and sandpit users. What a difference 😊

GARDEN CLEAN UP IN HOUSE GROUPS

Next Friday between recess and lunch we will divide into House groups to tidy some of our garden beds and give them some tender loving care. This was suggested to Parliament by our Environmental Minister, Claudia and Parliament thought it was a great idea to help our school look tidy for the holidays and earn points for their House. Friday is a casual dress day and we would love all children to bring some gardening gloves if they can.

Blessings to you for the coming week – the last week of term, where we will celebrate Holy week and Easter as a community.

Michelle

Students of the Week –

Term 1, Week 10 – Class Awards

Oli Jones – For demonstrating COURAGE by persisting in Maths! The challenge of solving extended equations has not been simple but you have worked to apply the rules and practise your order of operations.

Charlie Schunke – For demonstrating COURAGE to have a go at all tasks in the class and ask questions when you need to. This has been great to see in your narrative writing, your reading group, and your recall skills.

Ryan Price – For demonstrating LOVE when running around Australia you saw someone trip over. You stopped and ran back to help them up. This was very caring and considerate.

Grace Upton – For demonstrating QUALITY in Maths with the thought you put into the 'Maths Challenge Cards'. Your cards were creative, designed to promote students' improvement in Measurement, and also challenging to make them think.

Chloe Morrison-Smart – For demonstrating COMPASSION by assisting and helping all the students and the staff in our room on Wednesday. You encouraged people, helped them finish work, showed them where things were and did so with a smile!

Bodie Holder – For demonstrating QUALITY when creatively designing your clothing item, selecting the appropriate materials and persisting when it became difficult.

Students of the Week are presented at our Assembly every Friday afternoon at 2.45pm. Family and friends are welcome to attend.

SAPSASA Athletics at Riverton

On Wednesday we had 16 students represent the school at the Mid North District Athletics Championships at Riverton Oval.

The day was warm and sunny and the students had the opportunity to perform at a higher level.

There were many great results on the day and the students should be all very proud of their achievements and effort.

We had the following students gain a place on the day:

Tegan Kloock – 2nd 100m, 3rd 200m & High Jump

Mackenzie Victor – 1st High Jump

Lucy Menadue – 2nd 800m

It was great to see the enthusiasm and comradery the students had for each other and their willingness to watch each other at different events and support them.

A special thank you to the parents for their assistance with travelling there and support on the day.
